Christopher Demos-Brown, playwright

American Son

Sunday, October 27, 2019 at 7 PM
Temple Beth Am, 5950 SW 88 Street, Pinecrest
Seating limited to 90

Chris Demos-Brown is a Miami playwright, screenwriter, trial attorney, and co-founder of Miami’s Zoetic Stage. His play, American Son, recently completed a critically acclaimed run on Broadway starring Kerry Washington, Steven Pasquale, and Jeremy Jordan. Demos-Brown’s plays deal with contemporary American issues; he says he wants to convey the message “that our futures are bound up together and that there is a road to make that future different from how it seems to be going.” American Son looks at racism and violence against young black men through the eyes of an estranged interracial couple with a biracial teenage son. In the middle of the night, they receive a call from the police that their son’s car has been found, but he is missing. Netflix has bought the rights to produce the play, starring the original cast, as a feature film. Chris served as writer and co-producer on the project, which will be available to view this fall. Miami audiences will be able to see American Son at Zoetic Stage from January 9-26 next year! Please join us for an extraordinary evening, followed by a dessert extravaganza with ice cream sundaes and goodies galore!

RSVP no later than Monday, October 21.

As media pressure mounts on her to run for leadership of the Labour Party, she crosses paths with her university boyfriend, an up and coming political climber. 15 Challenge Your Perceptions

PAMM’s Teresita Fernández: Elemental retrospective will introduce you to the artist’s large-scale sculptures, installations, and mixed media works and will encourage you to reinterpret relationships between nature, history, and identity. Silk, graphite, onyx, mirrors, glass and charcoal are materials used by the artist to discover the sublime nature of traditional landscapes in stark contrast to the politically charged climate of our country. Our personal guided tour will be conducted by our own remarkable Fran Aronovitz.

Note: After our guided tour, you are encouraged to visit the Zhao Gang: History Painting presentation, a darkly ironic immersion into contemporary Chinese art. The apartment setting built inside the exhibition space reflects the censorship challenge faced by the artist’s generation.

16 Explore Art as a Tool for Social Justice

While driving on I-95, perhaps a billboard caught your eye. Or maybe you were captivated by a large-scale installation of an American Flag while walking in Wynwood. Come and meet Stuart Sheldon! A Miami native, Sheldon received a 2018 Ellie Creator Award for his contribution to the “largest creative collaboration in US history,” the 2018 For Freedoms 50 State Initiative billboard campaign. Sheldon uses celebrated works of classic literature to make political statements, slicing and reassembling their covers into interesting collages. He became the talk of Art Basel in 2015 with Fancy Nasty, an installation in a derelict waterfront property. His works have been exhibited at PAMM, The International Center of Photography Museum in New York, and in galleries throughout the United States and abroad.
