

SYMPOSIUM

displaying the work of 60 students putting knowledge to practice

April 28, 2014
5-8pm

RIDGEWOOD COMMONS

Come witness the application of academia into action in the works of 60 first-year students who are part of the leader-scholar communities: media & politics, global perspectives: place, race & gender, and leadership in health & medicine. These students have intensively engaged in rich, critical, and intellectual thought over the past year, and have spent the majority of their second semester learning the process of putting thought into action. Each project was specifically created in order to engage a larger audience on a specific issue, interest, or idea. Come see the process of their first-year experience in the leader-scholar program. Light refreshments will be served.

Special thanks to the outstanding Brandeis faculty who have fostered and enriched the minds of our student body. As part of the LSC program, students received generous engagement with Brandeis professors, which harnessed tremendous influence on their projects.

Teaching fellows

Amy Hanes, Anthropology
Andy Hart, Heller School
Alex Vasquez, Sociology

Supporters

Elaine Wong, Arts and Sciences
Andrew Flagel, Students and
Enrollment Allison Leventhal,
Community Living

communities
MEDIA & POLITICS
GLOBAL PERSPECTIVES: PLACE, RACE & GENDER
LEADERSHIP IN HEALTH & MEDICINE

info

Allison Leventhal allisonl@brandeis.edu
<http://www.brandeis.edu/studentaffairs/dcl/firstyear/LSC.html>